Together, let us preserve the only remaining building that the Federated Women's Club began...

Richland Center Women's Club, 1908

From the time following the civil war forward, Richland Center was home to a large number of social and volunteer organizations. The women's groups in the community were especially active, and in the summer 1882 the Women's Club of Richland Center was founded.

By 1908, the Federation of Women's Clubs began to actively pursue the construction of a new city hall. Since there was a shortage of public meeting space in the city, the Federation promoted the idea that a new building should include not only meeting spaces, but an auditorium so that large community gatherings could be held. The women met in April 1908 to begin planning a fund drive for the erection of a new city auditorium, and in June they circulated a petition requesting the city council call an election that would bond the city for a combination city hall and auditorium.

The Federation of Women's Clubs raised the money to outfit and furnish the lower level space, where they met regularly for meals and other club activities. They also made the space available to other organizations to rent.
